

SUREWASH APPOINTS EHEALTH GROUP AS NEW DISTRIBUTOR IN SOUTH AFRICA

SureWash, a hand hygiene training technology today announced that they have signed eHealth Group, a technology & health care services provider as their new distributor in South Africa. The SureWash products will provide both public and private hospitals in South Africa the opportunity to acquire assistance in training medical staff, patients and visitors to proficiency in the World Health Organisation (WHO) hand hygiene technique.

eHealth Group work with the top healthcare systems in Africa and this new agreement between both companies gives SureWash the opportunity to expand their presence into a new market. In addition, the South African healthcare sector can benefit from this new, engaging approach to hand hygiene training that SureWash offers; reducing the risk of infection, and improving patient outcomes.

Cecil Ryan at SureWash states, “we are delighted to announce the appointment of eHealth Group as our distributor for South Africa. eHealth Group’s main areas of focus is the implementation and deployment of state of the art robotic Telehealth solutions, medical/surgical training, and other innovative solutions to improve health care delivery. SureWash will fit perfectly with their range of training and infection control solutions.”

SureWash compliments South Africa’s increased focus on hand hygiene behaviour by providing a training technology that ensures compliance in hand hygiene. This partnership will provide the South African health care sector more accessible methods to training that is available 24/7, to continuously support and improve hand hygiene technique. According to eHealth Group, “we are always looking for new innovative technologies that can improve the delivery and quality of care to patients. SureWash is very intriguing for us because of its impressive technology that aids hand hygiene training, improving patient outcomes.”
